BE PATIENT WITH THE LIVING.
Sweet friend, perchance both you and I,
Ere love is past forgiving,
Should take the earnest lesson home—
Be patient with the living!
To-day's repressed rebuke may save
Our blinding tears to-morrow;
Then, patience, even when kindest edge
May whet a nameless sorrow.

'Tis easy to be gentle when
Death's silence shames our clamor,
And easy to discern the best
Through memory's mystic gleam;
But wise it were for thee and me,
Ere love is past forgiving,
To take the tender lesson home—
Be patient with the living.

DAY OF REGISTRATION.

Next Tuesday, October 4th, the First Day—Republicans, Register.

Next Tuesday is the official registration day for all Kentucky cities of the first, second, third and fourth classes. Such other days of registration as may be deemed necessary by the City Councils of said cities may be provided for by them by ordinance.

This will be known as the General Registration and any person registering may vote at all elections until the next General Registration.

No one, living in Maysville, can possibly vote at the November election unless he is properly registered. The attention of Republicans is especially called to this fact. Every vote is needed, so see to it that your name is on the book.

The citizens of this city are accustomed to registering for city elections, but this is the first time it has been necessary for a voter to be registered for a county or state election.

WEATHER CROP BULLETIN.

Condition of the Small Crops Throughout Kentucky Up to Yesterday.

The temperature of the past week has averaged about 4° above the normal, and the cloudless weather which has generally prevailed gave abundant sunshine. The precipitation showed a large deficiency, except in the central counties of the state, where the local storms of Sunday night brought with them very heavy showers and in places created a considerable excess for the week. Little or no rain fell in the Western division of the state.

The conditions described have hastened the maturity of corn and tobacco and have favored all kinds of work in the fields.

Corn is about safe from frost, and the cutting of the crop has commenced in many places. The indications point to a smaller yield than that of last year, the shortage being due mainly to the effects of the recent drouth.

Tobacco cutting is progressing very rapidly with the favorable weather conditions for such work. About two-thirds of the crop is already out and housed, and while the yield is less than it was last year, it is of uniformly good quality so far. A portion of the crop will be very late owing to tardy planting, and there is consequently much danger to it from frost. It is thought, however, that at the farthest the 12th of October will see it all safely housed. As the average date of the first severe frost is October 6th, it will be seen that there is a fair prospect of injury from this cause.

The work of preparing the soil for plowing and seeding wheat has been greatly retarded in many parts of the state, owing to the drouth. Some little progress was made with this work during the week in portions of the state which have had rains. Reports indicate that a very large acreage of wheat will be sown this fall.

Late fruits will be very short, and some sections of the state report that there will be no crop of winter apples at all.

Friday For Luck.

According to Director General Davis, Friday has always brought good luck to the World's Columbian Exposition. It was on Friday that the House located the fair at Chicago. It was on another Friday that the Senate confirmed this act. President Harrison put his signature to the bill on Friday, and on a subsequent Friday named the National Commission which met on Friday a few weeks later. Columbus discovered America on Friday, and the commemoration on October 21st next will occur on Friday. And the exposition was voted a subsidy of $2,500,000 on Friday. All of which goes to show that Friday is not such a bad day after all.

A PECULIAR ROBBERY.

A Little Child Slips Its Hand Through a Slot in a Post Office and Innocently Abstracts a Valuable Letter.

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 29.—A Darby, Pa. post office robbery turns out to have been a peculiar affair. A little child, innocent of any thought of wrong, slipped her hand through the big slot in the village post office door and took out a letter containing checks for $4,500. Investigation has shown that this was why the valuables from the First National bank of Darby to the Independence bank of Philadelphia went astray on Thursday last. It has been ascertained that Mary Andrews, aged but six years was the culprit. She and other children, among whom was her sister Lizzie, aged eleven, were playing around the post office door on their way home from school, and while Lizzie was looking in the window, little Mary was observed to put her hand in the slot of the letter box and withdraw it with a long envelope in her grasp. Soon nearly all the small urchins of Darby were playing bankers around the lots with the stolen checks. The bank did not discover its loss until Saturday morning, when its officers received a letter from the Independence bank of Philadelphia stating that they had failed to receive the expected checks. Investigation was at once begun and the checks were found scattered broadcast throughout Darby. Payment on them was stopped, and by Saturday evening most of them, amounting to over $3,000, were recovered. As the child was too young to realize what she had done, of course, no legal proceedings were begun against her, and the matter has been dropped.

"KING ALBERT" DIES.

The Notorious Louisville Colored Desperado Succumbs to the Dagger Wound in His Head.

LOUISVILLE, Ky., Sept. 29.—"King Albert," the notorious Louisville thief and chieftain of the Blue Wings, is dead at last, after a reign of terror for eight years. As it was hard to convict him for his shrewdness, so it was hard to kill him, and he lived three days with a dagger wound five inches long in his brain. He was a desperado in every sense, and when cornered once by a shrewd detective he stabbed the man almost to death and escaped.

When the police authorities learned that "King Albert" was at last dead there was great relief. He was 28 years of age, and lived in the slums of the "Chute," a notorious part of the city, where he could easily be concealed. He was never known to work, except once he secured a private detective's commission from an agency, but turned his authority into a means of robbery and crime.

A STRANGE FATALITY.

Two Men Killed—A Third Badly Injured—A Political Dispute.

ERIE, Pa., Sept. 29.—A singular double fatality occurred in Northeast, Orin Sweet, Charles Ketcham and Charles Smith stopped to rest at a late hour on the Lake Shore and Michigan Southern railroad platform. The noise of a passing train drowned that of an approaching train, and Orin Sweet was struck by the edge of the engine, sending him a mangled corpse against Charles Ketcham, killing him. Ketcham's body struck his nephew, Smith, and the latter was also so badly injured that his life is despaired of. All three men were sober and deeply engrossed in a political dispute at the time of the accident.
